

2010 The Violinist Verdelho

About This Wine

This gorgeous Verdelho, our only white wine, has a lovely, creamy texture, great acidity and long, persistent flavours of honeysuckle, pineapple and citrus. It's all the things we love about white wine. We hope you'll love it too.

The Violinist is named for the days when Sarah was made to play the violin right-handed in school, so that she didn't poke her right-handed neighbours in the eye with her bow.

The grapes were grown on the Gemtree vineyard in McLaren Vale and the Glen Moray vineyard in the Adelaide Hills.

33% of the Violinist was fermented and matured in 67% new American and 33% new French oak.

Reviews

Wine Advocate

'A blend of 1/3 Adelaide Hills fruit and 2/3 McLaren Vale, the 2010 The Violinist Verdelho gives intense aromas of lemon juice, white pepper, coriander seed and a touch of grapefruit peel. Crisp, rich and very full in the mouth (15.5% declared alcohol), this Verdelho provides a great intensity of spiced citrus flavors with some poached pears and apple slices coming through in the long finish. Delicious now, it should remain fresh and vibrant to 2013.' – 90 points, Lisa Perrotti-Brown, www.erobertparker.com

Wine Spectator

'Soft and fruity, delivering a brash mouthful of pear, apricot and spice flavours. Feels a bit sweet on the finish. Drink now.' – Harvey Steinman, www.winespectator.com
